SOL MATRIX

We are each a unique world unto ourselves. The solar energy imprinted in our form at the first breath of life. The energy that attracted and created a unique set of personal programming called experience. This unique numerical energy footprint left behind where we have stood in the sands of our time. Our sole description and our soul's depiction in this life. The unification of thought and form. The bond between mind and matter. This bond existing between people give our relationships their own life force. We must honor and protect this energy if our relationships are to succeed. Our success is not reliant upon the longevity of our connection but how well we fulfilled the purpose of our union. The Sol Matrix is the body of the life force. Relationships are the vessels of our unified energy. The blueprint of the road map of our life's path together. The matrix of soul mates is the world created by our overlapping reality.

*“All relationships have cracks.
Be careful not to view them as canyons or you may never get over them.”*

“The relationship is the vessel, engagement is the journey and marriage is the destination. Live your life with purpose and be fully engaged.”

“Man will never rise to his throne by standing on his woman. Woman will never rise to hers by standing on her man. Stand with each other or you will never be able to get up. It matters not who stands first if you are not strong enough to extend your hand to lift the rest of yourself up.”

“In the process of being there for your partner remember never to neglect the one person who needs you the most. Yourself.”

“Be careful who you attach yourself to. If their morals and principles do not match yours, you may find yourself with unknown enemies that would not have been obtained on your own.”

“You can never enter a partnership with the mind of an individual. You must first acknowledge all of the skills and needs of your partner in order to make the team work.”

“The quality of a man’s woman is the value of his dollar; for she is the natural symbol of money ($=ISIS). Expand the womb of her mind and you will build the value of your dollar and fill your memory bank account. Man must always grow so that he can handle fortune.”

“We cant deal with each other if we cant heal with each other.”

“We must not jump into our decisions for love is not Checkers. Approach your next partnership move with the skill of a chess master who always wins by taking the time to check mates.”

“Marriage to a mental slave is a conflict of interest for a free thinker.”

“A relationship should not be a prison where you are limited to the ideal version that someone else has established for you. Find a mate not an inmate.”

“Don’t wait until a relationship is established with someone before you begin to study them. You will find yourself in a test with no answers.”

“Never allow a loved one to cause you to feel bad for growing. Once you outgrow your bond with them, those who truly care about you will not stand in your way.”

“When an issue arises with your partner, never discuss it with anyone else until you attempt a resolution. You may end up spreading a fire that wasn’t lit until you struck the match.”

“In abusive partnerships the abused does more harm to themselves by staying than the one abusing them.”

*“Relationships without trust are like cars without wheels.
You can get in them but you won’t be going anywhere.”*

“Once you fail to learn from your own mistakes you are in an abusive relationship with yourself.”

“Man(key) and woman(lock) were trapped inside of the prison of their own ignorance when the guard asked them who is superior between the key and the lock. They spent so much time debating over the question that hundreds of years passed and they forgot that they were imprisoned and all they had to do was bring the key and the lock together and the door would open.”

“Love intimidates the lower part of us as we grow in the love for ourself and the love for each other. We may have to sever bonds that once served us valuable including the connection between what we were and what we are. Those unable to recognize this transformation will only know us in fond memory that pales in comparison to our radiant future.”

“He keeps her informed while she keeps him inspired. Together they are the perfect balance of information and inspiration. Information provides the precise directions on the road map of purpose while inspiration provides the passionate encouragement fueling your vehicle to reach your souls mission.”

“Truly loving your partner means to work daily at improving yourself to provide them with the best version of you that is currently possible.”

“When you are truly connected, two becomes one and when you are not in tune with yourself one becomes two. It is better to be single with someone else than be divided by yourself.”

“Old relationships often leave behind waste in our spiritual system as well as our internal memory. Before you move on it is important to fast from connecting with anyone new in order to detoxify yourself from any harmful energy that may remain. Failure to do so may result in the pollution of a potentially pure and healthy connection.”

“Take the time to examine where your partner is to assist them in where they are going. You have to know each other to grow each other.”

“Just because you find a good man or woman doesn’t mean they are good for you. We all have universal and personal compatibility requirements and both needs must be met in order for full functionality to exist.”

“A true man is never intimidated by a strong woman and a true woman is never uncomfortable with a strong man. In fact both would settle for nothing less, for weakness in others does not determine their strength and the better they function alone the stronger they are together.”

“Sex for pleasure without purpose is like eating for taste without nourishment.”

“The first step to healing is being able to forgive. We have all been abused as well as being the abuser. We must first be able to forgive ourselves before we can forgive each other and have successful relationships.”

“Making the connection is only the first step. Without function and meaning there is nowhere to step except backwards.”

“Keep a safe distance from self-hating people for they will not value the king if they do not value the throne. Yet remain close enough so they may feel the energy of your force field of self love and one day embrace their own.”

“Once two people bond at the level that they become one, any attempt to harm each other becomes self destructive.”

“Love sees no competition in the spirit of true partnership. Instead it trusts that all will be given to see each other’s individual success and the devotion to mutual purpose.”

“Living is always about growing closer to yourself, by gaining a greater understanding of who you are through all that surrounds you. We will not learn to love until we first love to learn.”

“Relationships are not meant to last forever. Find and fulfill the purpose of your connection. You do a great injustice to all who need your light by not replacing a bulb that has burned out a long time ago.”

“Stop getting relationship advice from your lonely friends. Trust that those who would rather be in your place will sabotage you to get there and soothe their ego when you are just as lonely as they are. Sometimes the best advice comes from the person we refuse to listen to laying right next to us.”

“Communication is the bridge connecting every partnership. Man and woman speak a different language and failure to learn how to translate will burn your bridge from both ends at once.”

“Much like a roller coaster the ups and downs are the pulse of a union. The more energy you give it the higher and lower you will go and neither can be avoided. Some will enjoy the heights and others need to scream while its on the way down to feel the partnership is alive.”

“A relationship is an equation that balances itself on both sides.”

“Give what can be received not what can be offered.”

“The highest level of a relationship is not a bond between people but a cosmic alignment of purpose. Once you bear witness to the marriage of destiny you become truly inseparable.”

“There is no such thing as falling in love. It can only be achieved by uplifting ourselves and seeing each other at a higher level. We have fallen not in love but for a false definition that made the true goal appear unattainable. Once we rise in love we can never fall.”

“It is important to take a moment out of every day to let your partner know how much you truly value them. There is nothing like the feeling of genuine appreciation for it is the medicine that prevents illness before it arrives.”

“We cannot escape the power of meaningful attraction. Even when our direction seems contrary we will always be led back to our original thought. Sometimes people are so drawn to you that they will run away from you in a circle right into your arms.”

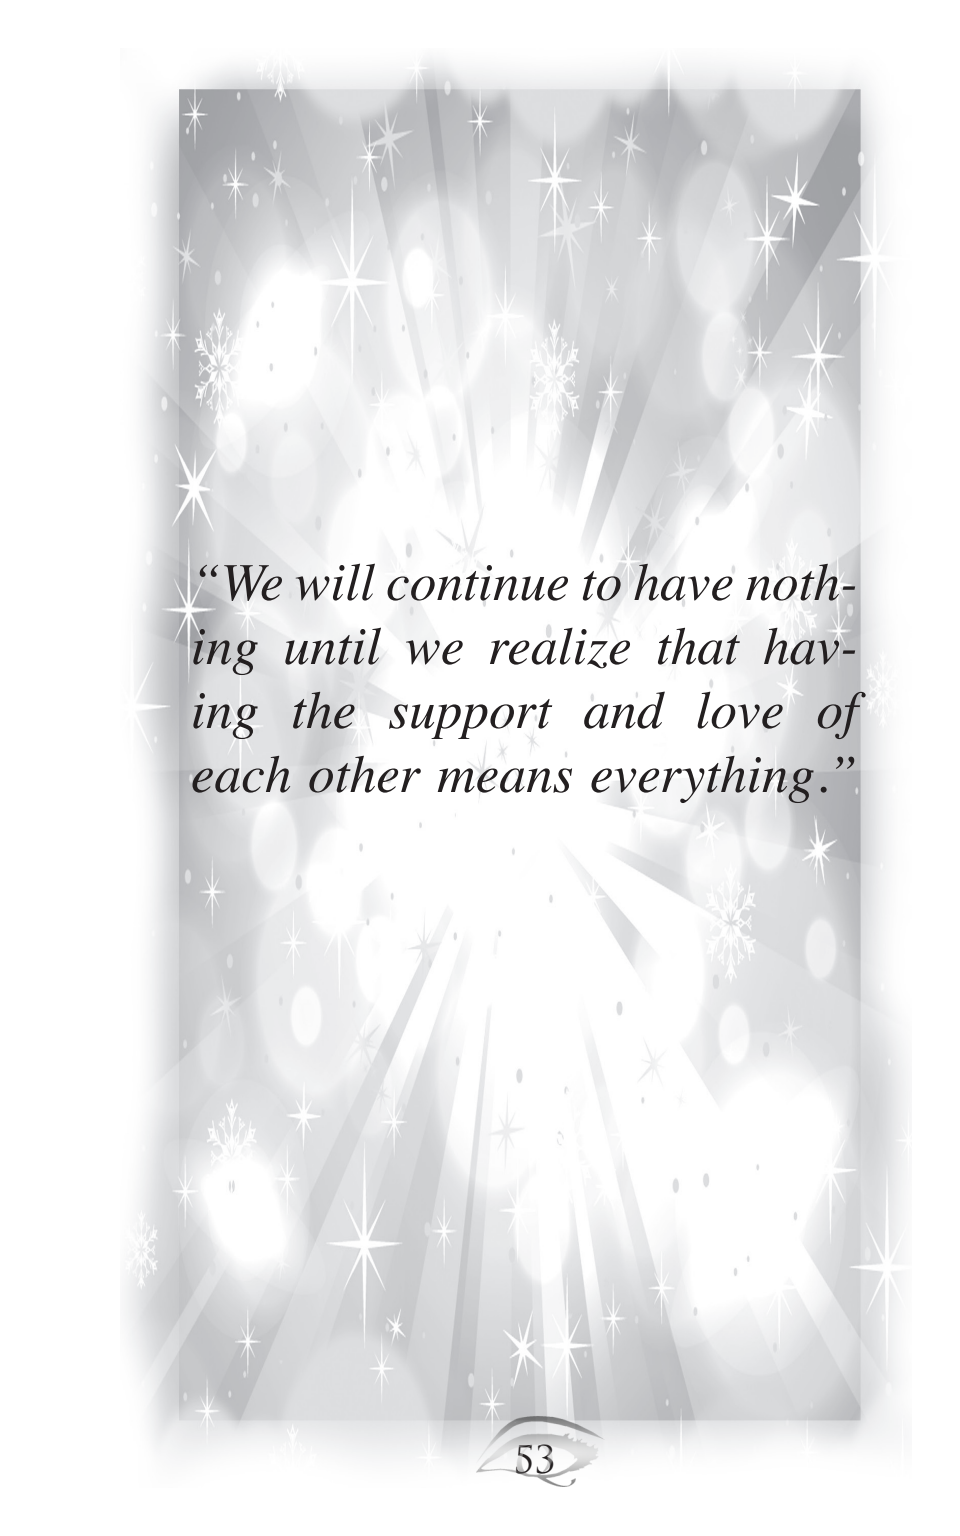

“No one has the right or power to block a divine connection. When you recognize the purpose of someone significant in your life others may not appreciate the value. Enjoy each other free of the misunderstanding and insecurities of outside forces.”

“Your partner is part of your uniform that others will judge your appearance by. So get in where you fit in or get out if your outfit doesn’t fit.”

“Never expect to have functional relationships with dysfunctional people.”

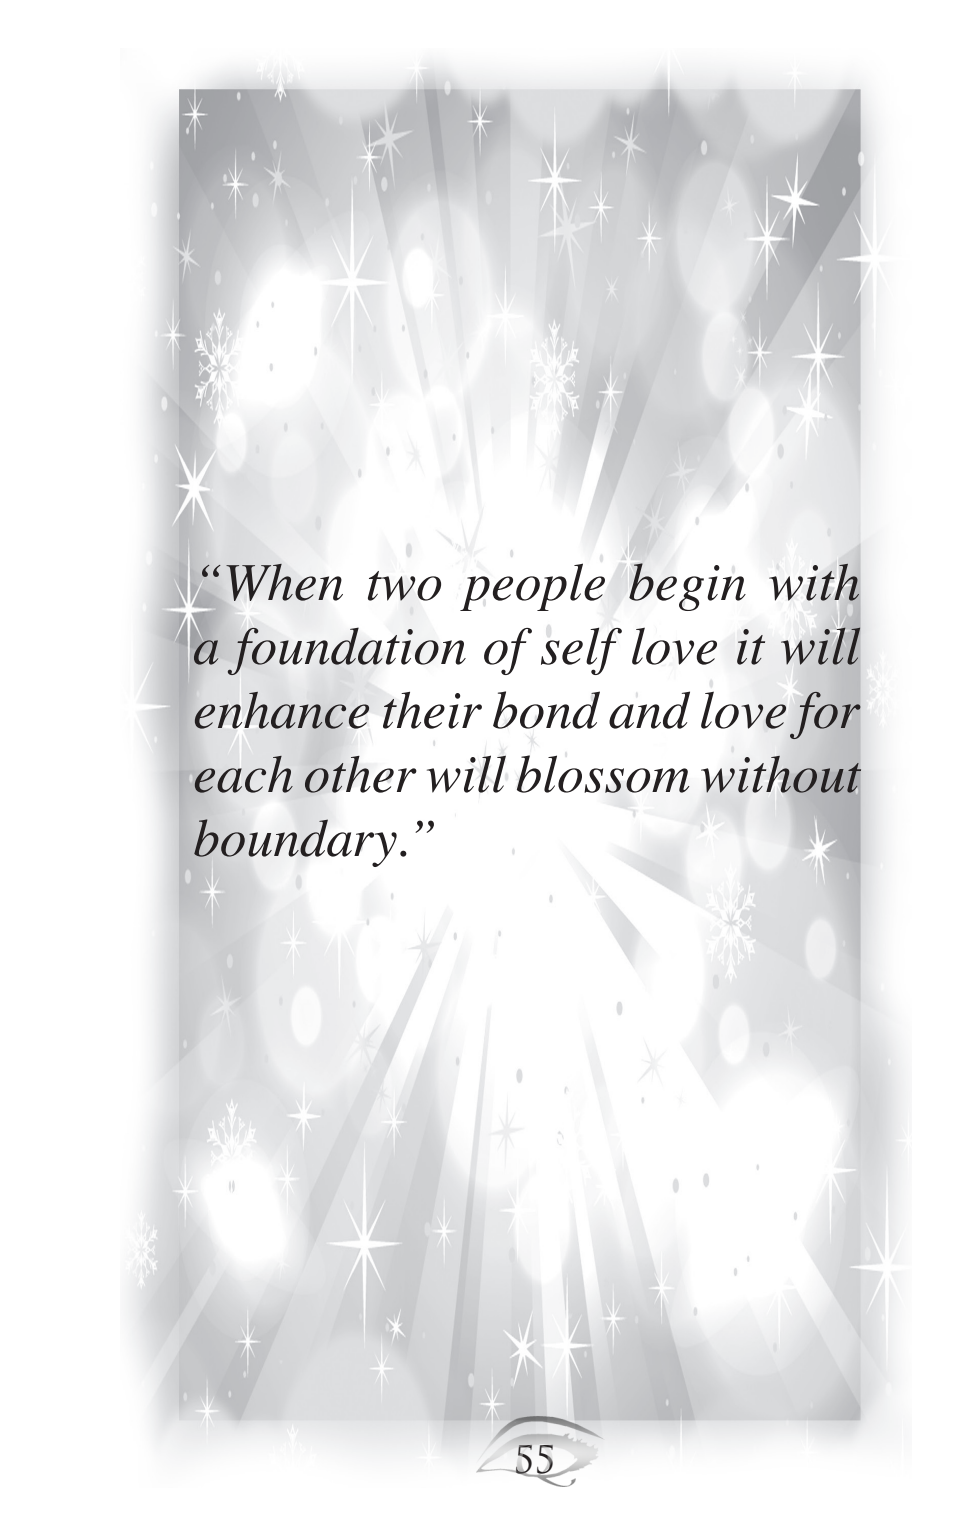

“Before you enter any relationship you must know the difference between loving someone for who they are and loving the idea of who they could potentially be. Unless you realize you are powerless to change them and can only influence their will to change failure will be the inevitable result.”

“It is better to find a piece that fits than force one that doesn’t. In the end they will either complete the picture or keep you puzzled.”

“We will continue to have nothing until we realize that having the support and love of each other means everything.”

“Those amongst you will either build you up or break you down. Let no one lower your vibration. If you are not positive enough to raise the negative energy of those around you remove them from your inner circle and surround yourself with the highest quality energy you can find.”

“When two people begin with a foundation of self love it will enhance their bond and love for each other will blossom without boundary.”

“As frustrating as verbal disagreement can be at times we must remember that it is a natural way for the mind to purify its thoughts. As in the body, discomfort let's you know there is a problem and the body is working to repair itself. It is when this disagreement becomes silent that you have a problem. Often we seek to mask the pain as the cause of it persists to our detriment undetected.”

“The most intimate relationship you will ever have is with your inner self for there is a private life you have only shared with a part of you no one will ever know.”

“A relationship with all ups and no downs would be like riding along an ocean with no waves.”

“Never disrespect your partner in front of anyone for that is a hole that is sure to sink your relationship.”

“Your partner is not a trophy to satisfy the vision of others and please your ego. If you thrive from the envy and desire of others to possess what you have instead of the balance, function and value they bring to your life, you have already given them up to someone else on a silver platter.”

“Take a moment to look at the partner you have, the work you do, the things you own, and the place you live. Do they reflect who you are or who you were? If they reflect who you are harmony has been achieved. If they reflect who you were you have grown and must seek balance.”

“Mind sex with the spiritually imbalanced may cause mentally transmitted diseases.”

“Never plan a future with someone without planning one without them.”

“Never forsake the beauty of what is, with an unyielding love for what could have been.”

“Before you get in the sheets look beneath the cover and read between the lines.”

“Hate is a roadblock on the path of ones purpose and so we are unable to EVOLve without LOVE.”

“Take the time to examine where your partner is in order to assist them in where they are going. You have to know each other to grow each other.”

“Many of us are pretending to be in relationships that we know have ended for the sake of our unstable comfort while resting in a house of cards nervously anticipating a strong wind of change. You never know who is on deck when the cards are shuffled so prepare to hold a new hand.”

“The more you withhold the truth about you from your mate the less power they will have to help you when it is most needed.”

“Love sees no competition in the spirit of true partnership. Instead a trust that all will be given to see each other's individual success and the devotion to mutual purpose.”

“Relationships are not meant to last forever. Find and fulfill the purpose of your connection. You do a great injustice to all who need your light by not replacing a bulb that has burned out a long time ago.”

“The greatest bond is a marriage of the soul. As you grow closer to each other every day you become closer to the center of yourself.”

“A relationship is always a work in progress. Once you stop working on it you stop progressing.”

“The relationship between two people delivers the soul from one place to another. Therefore its ending never indicates failure but success.”

“Since we are always growing we will always have to renegotiate the contract that binds us to reestablish our balance. As we stand on two sides of a scale the growth of one partner without the other will surely leave the relationship imbalanced.”

“Man is the head of the family and woman is the heart of the family. If she doesn't listen to him the unit will become brain damaged. If he doesn't listen to her the family body will have a heart attack.”

“If you are with someone who doesn't trust you then you will be considered guilty of crimes you didn't commit. If you are with someone who doesn't trust themselves you will be considered guilty of crimes they have committed.”

“Sacred love is the mirror of our soul reflecting the meaning of life in each other’s eyes.”

“As partners one can never deny the significance of their counterpart for if one denies the external balance of self they deny the internal balance of self.”

“Life is an elevator that appears as if it’s going up and down where you will meet people on different floors until you reach your highest destination. Some you will grow fond of on your travel but you must let them get off on the right floor for them regardless of your relationship along the way.”

“Investing in your woman is an investment into the quality of your children and thus the future of your nation and the world.”

“Sometimes you must hurt your partners feelings to heal their condition.”

“If there is no trust there is no relationship and trusting yourself is a prerequisite to trusting others.”

“Love is a concept that is often spoken of and rarely understood. Often slipping through the fingers of those who think they have a strong grasp on it.”

“Love has never been blind and the blind have never seen love for love is sight beyond our own I’s as we recognize ourself in each other.”

“Never allow any outside influence to have more control over your partnership than you do.”

“To love is having instant consideration of how your partner must maintain balance with you in every decision you make.”

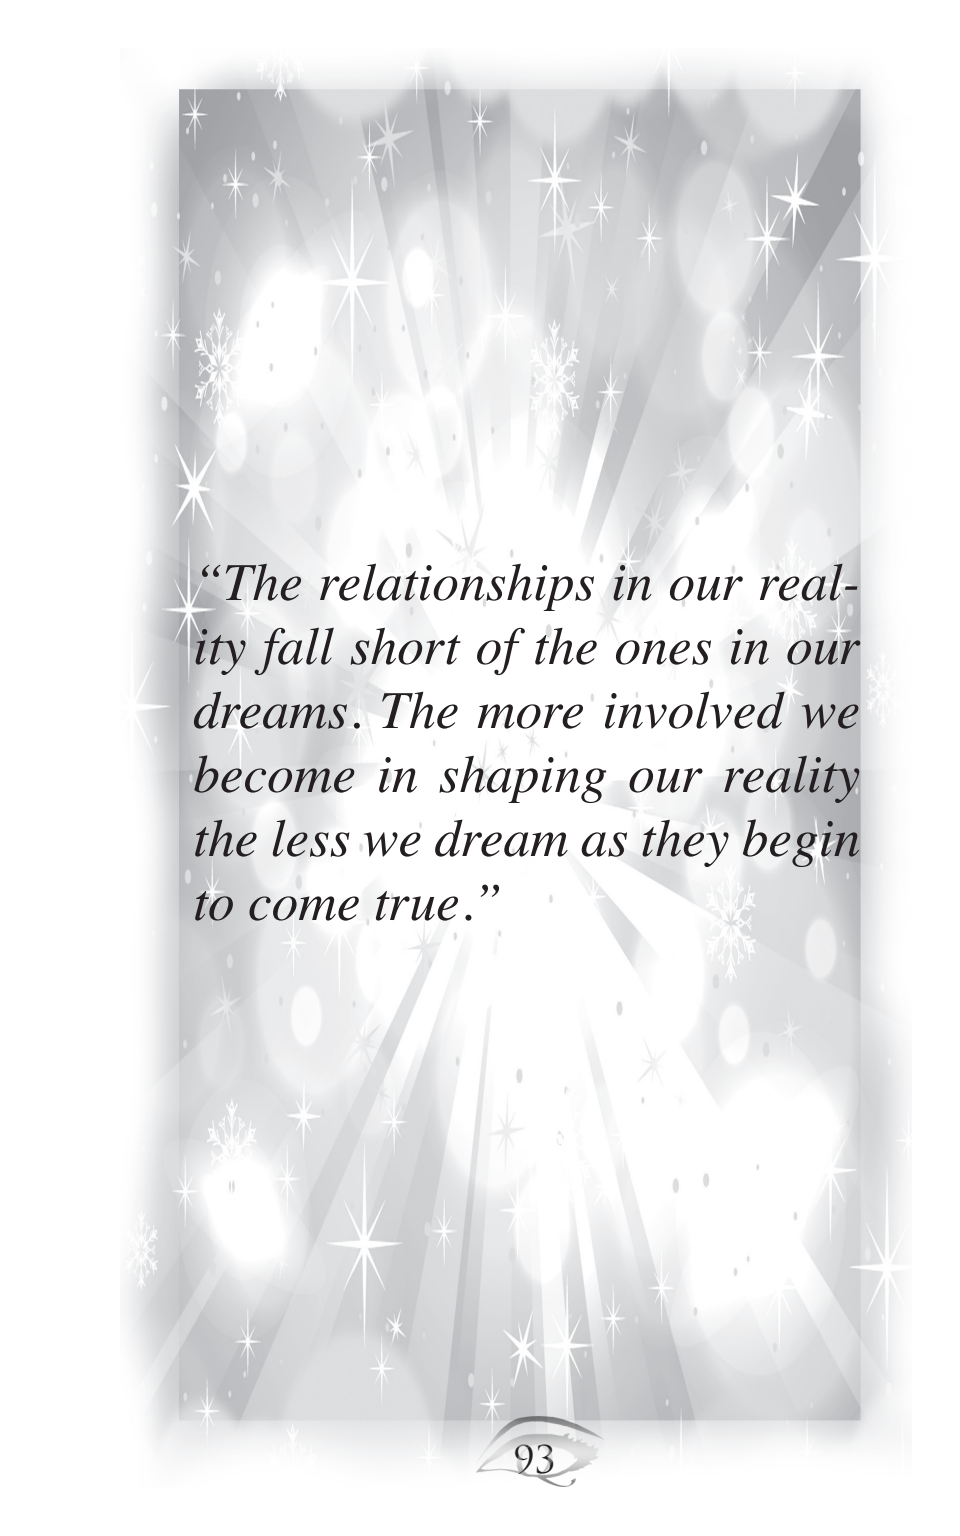

“Those who fear expressing their love also fear receiving it from others. A door is an entrance and an exit. A closed heart will block the love that’s coming and going.”

“A relationship is the temporary pattern of cosmic energy developing in a cycle. Cycles are expected behaviors agreed upon by those representing that energy.”

“A partner can only bring you closer or further away from your true self. The delusional beauty of someone representing our desires can enchant our imagination and slowly seduce our spirit from its center.”

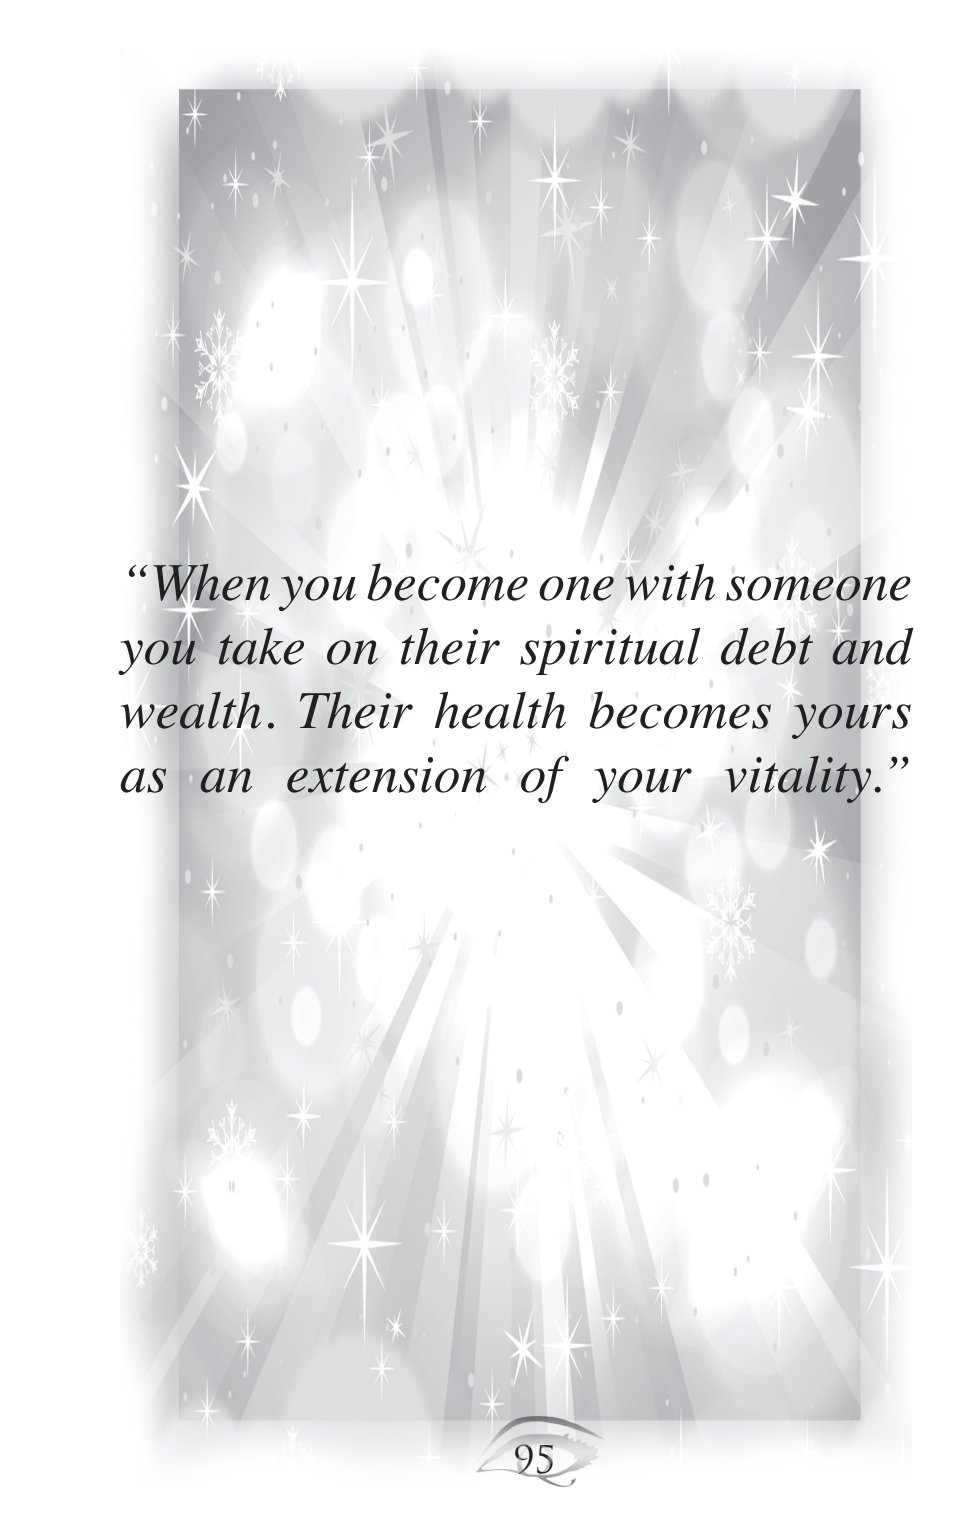

“The success rate of any relationship in your life will increase dramatically by understanding your own energy and how it impacts those who come in contact with you.”

“Learn your partner from the inside out. True love is to be more possessed by their impression than being impressed by their possessions.”

“The relationships in our reality fall short of the ones in our dreams. The more involved we become in shaping our reality the less we dream as they begin to come true.”

“Sometimes we lose someone in our life not because we didn’t understand them but because we failed to see our own reflection. A bond of value can be broken by one who does not understand his own strength.”

“When you become one with someone you take on their spiritual debt and wealth. Their health becomes yours as an extension of your vitality.”

“It is wise every day to communicate your concerns before they become problems. Concerns will only strengthen you by knowing they only exist where there is great value and less confidence.”

“A relationship has its own heartbeat. Its own life pulse moving to its own rhythm. It is a dance and once you are in tune you will know every move.”

“Those who do not hear the music created by the harmony of their union will never know if they are the right instrument playing the right notes.”

“Just as people change in appearance and behavior as they mature, a relationship will transform as growth changes the way you now relate to each other. Do not resist this change but embrace it so that you may have a hand in shaping your world together.”

“Never compete with your partners strengths for it is the reason you are with them. They excel where you fall short and thus any jealousy of their ability would only sabotage your own success.”

“Our value in our world is determined by how efficient we are in serving each other.”

“A relationship dies in a mans mind and within a woman’s heart when his thoughts don’t meet her feelings.”

“Soul mating is chemistry on its highest level. Failure to approach each other scientifically may have unexpected results.”

“We are each measured not in size and form but by our own value. Thus to achieve true balance one must know his own weight in gold.”

“Once man or woman clearly understand the function of masculine and feminine energy instant health will appear.”
